For centuries,

Gold

has been considered as
- a hedge against inflation;
- a safe haven;
- a stable medium to protect wealth.

MELITA Gold 2018 MALTA

The Central Bank of Malta, in collaboration with Lombard Bank Malta plc., will be issuing three gold coins to be named Melita, after Malta's ancient name. The coins are struck by PAMP mint of Switzerland.

Melita coins will be issued in three denominations and weights. The coins are legal tender and since they are classed as investment gold, the price of the coins is based primarily on the metal content and the spot price of gold on the international markets. These coins are exempt from Value Added Tax.

The 2018 issue will be limited, whereas in future the number of coins to be minted shall be according to demand and therefore vary from year to year. The design on the coins is intended to remain the same each year with the only change being the year of issue.

Having a .9999 millesimal fineness (24 carats), the coins are among the purest official bullion coins available worldwide. The largest version of the three coins weighs 1 troy ounce (31.10 grammes) and carries a face value of €100. The other two denominations and sizes are 1/2 oz. (€50) and 1/4 oz. (€25).

The Melita's obverse and reverse respectively display a personification of Malta inspired by Edward Caruana Dingli postage stamp of 1922 and the coat of arms of the Republic of Malta.

Each coin is officially certified and housed in an individually numbered sealed card that both protects and certifies the coin within. Scanning, using an iphone app, will authenticate the coin itself.

Malta now joins a number of other countries that have their own bullion coins.

The Melita will make it easier for those wishing to opt for gold either as a portfolio diversification, or as part of a coin collection.
